Purpose and Background

Typically demand for parking is highest closest to common destinations, such as shops, medical centres and cinemas. These high demand parking spaces are also those needed by persons with disabilities. To ensure that persons with disabilities can access facilities by vehicle, parking spaces need to be reserved for them. Disabled parking control exemption signs fulfill this function by prohibiting all vehicles, except those used by persons with disabilities, from parking in designated spaces. Vehicles using the reserved parking spaces must display a valid Disabled Persons Parking Permit.
